MUSTER-IN DATE FOR COMPANY D ASKED BY CAPT. SKOMP; MARKS END OF STRENUEOUS CAMPAIGN

The required number of men having been enlisted in Company D, Tenth Infantry, National Guard of Pennsylvania, to entitle it to both state and federal recognition, Captain A. R. Skomp's application for muster-in has been approved by Colonel Edward Martin. The date has not been definitely fixed but in a communication to Captain Skomp Colonel Martin states that the ceremony of official recognition will take place some time during the coming week.

The completion of the re-organization of the local unit of the Tenth marks the successful conclusion of one of the most strenuous efforts ever made in Connellsville to enlist a body of men for military service. In the face of more and a greater variety of circumstances, forms of opposition and other adverse conditions than have ever before been encountered Captain Skomp and those who have been associated with him in the work of recruiting the company, have accomplished what, at times, was seemingly impossible.

The natural aversion of men to military service, which is a condition following every war, was less an retarding factor than the systematic propaganda which was circulated by certain interests to prevent enlistment. Early in the campaign almost 100 men were listed up as desirous of accepting service. Through the persuasion of parents, in some instances, and other parties in other instances, a very considerable number of these men failed to report for physical examination and sealing of enlistment papers. Still others developed cases of plain "cold feet."

Notwithstanding all the discouragements and obstacles thrown in the way Captain Skomp persisted in his efforts. Several plans were adopted

COAL CAR PRIORITY AND THE BEEHIVE COKE TRADE.

With the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission directing the railroads to accord priority to the movement of coal will presently operate to greatly increase traffic of this class, relieve fuel shortage at various points, and bring about a greater activity at the mines. It is less likely to prove equally beneficial to the coke trade of the Connellsville region.

Because of the long prevailing scarcity of cars there has been a more or less general practice in vogue, with the consent of the railroads, whereby coke producers have used coal cars for loading coke and coal producers have in like manner employed cars which are adapted to hauling coke. In the new order, as coke producers interpret it, is to require the return to coal traffic exclusively all the coal cars heretofore occasionally or regularly employed in hauling coke, and the coke cars preempted by the coal loaders are permitted to be still so used, the coke producers are destined to suffer a much more pronounced curtailment in car supply.

The increase in the number of cars available for coal loading will shortly have the effect of increasing coal output very materially. Coupled with the shutting off of shipments to export piers, through embargoes laid because of the recurrence of railroad labor troubles in the east, a considerable tonnage of coal has already been diverted to other markets. Included in this outgoing tonnage is much by-product coal, an adequate supply of which by-product oven plants have been unable to procure for some months past. This shift in the coal situation is having the effect of causing a decided drop in the price of coal.

At the same time, the lessening in coke car supply is tending to stiffen the price of coke in view of the certain probability that production cannot be increased without augmentation of the car supply.

This condition with respect to production may be of long duration but it is less likely that coke prices will remain at the present high level. Assuredly they will not if the by-product ovens are able to secure coal in such quantities as will enable them to produce coke in excess of their existing commitments. As soon as they have surplus stocks on hand they will seek the markets now or heretofore supplied by beehive coke. The extent to which the latter may be supplanted means of corresponding reduction in the demand upon the Connellsville region. This is not likely to assume such proportions that the producers of beehive will be without a market, but it does indicate the very reasonable probability that the long expected expansion of beehive trade may be delayed until the discontinuance of the coal car priority order will act to remove artificial control of natural conditions in the fueling industry.

WILLIAM J. GOAT HERDING.
We have the word and judgment of no less competent authority than William Jennings Bryan that the Democratic convention soon to assemble in San Francisco has virtually but one acceptable candidate for the nomination for president.

By a process of elimination, which the Peerless Leader performs without the administration of an anesthetic, the list of those heretofore classed as eligibles is trimmed down to the point that leaves no doubt in the mind of the Hero of Three Lost Causes as to the uniformity of his own case. With the deadlockedness of one speaking with authority the self-appointed censor of Democratic aspirants dispenses of each in turn after the manner of a court of last resort handing down its final decree.

The claims of President Wilson as his own successor are dismissed with the curt observation that he "need not be considered." Crown Prince McAdoo has acquired no right to apotactical succession, and for a number of reasons. In the first place he is under two very heavy handicaps in being in close relationship with the President and having instituted "silence on the peace treaty." Furthermore, he is unable to call to his support those to whom the President's candidacy appeals with special force and would furnish an easy mark for all of the President's enemies.

Attorney General Palmer, the Fighting Quaker and avenging Nemesis of the pitiful profiteers, is regarded as no less a presidential impossibility than Son-in-Law McAdoo. He entered the campaign in a position to deal sternly with the profiteers, "says Bryan, "and an expectant public was ready to applaud, but the profiteer seems to have things all his own way. The attorney general is unfortunate, too, in having to espouse ratification of the treaty without reservations."

Governor Cox, Ohio's favorite son and one time side partner of Bryan in the advocacy of the "dry" cause in the Buckeye state, but later deserter to the wicked enemy, is placed with Governor Edwards of New Jersey in that category of candidates to whom no honors are to be paid at San Francisco by or with the consent of the sturdy and zealous champion of grape juice as the national beverage. Vice President Marshal has fallen under the same ban for the reason that he is accused of having made "a feeble bid for the wet votes." Postmaster General Burleson has been as unhesitatingly excommunicated since his declaration of intention to vote for "repeal of the drastic and absurd provisions of the Volstead prohibition enforcement act."

Evenly regarding Senators Clark and Underwood and the lesser lights of Democracy as far removed from serious consideration as candidates, the former premier of the Wilson administration does not exist either of them to the dignity of honorable mention. He does concede, however, that Ex-Ambassador Gorringe "has many friends among his delegates, which is to the presidential possibilities of his own party's persuasion."

The one and only deduction the public can draw from three-time Tex-Candidate Bryan's process of goat-herdling is that with rare discernment and becoming modesty, he has selected himself as the only fit, worthy and deserving sheep to be named by the San Francisco convention for the November slaughter.

To "Billy" Bishop, a Connellsville boy, will be reserved the honor of being a statesman-like tool to the President of the Senate. Herding, for President, "Billy" can be depended upon to give the people's choice for the high office proper publicity as he journeys westward.

The reductions of 15 to 30 per cent in the price of lumber are cheerful in the situation but it is hard to help out on the family budget very much, housewives having had little practice in cooking wood.

BACK TO BUSINESS!

NO MORE "STAR GAZING!"

Philadelphia Ledger.

The country has had enough of "excursions and alarms." We have tired of looking toward the White House and wondering what a day would bring forth. It was exciting, even when it was tragic, but it was bad for business; and, after all, business is the principal business of this business nation.

We have had a regime of cowering with the "Reds," of acrobatic "kowtowing" to the "big stick" in the hands of Labor, of "government by imitation" and the solution of practical problems by academic theory. We have had "Bryanism" decorated and disguised by classic rhetoric and the noble phrasing of a college valedictorian. But it has been pure "Bryanism" in its disturbing effect on the ordinary industrial and economic processes of the country. An intermittent threat of "free silver" would not have caused much more unrest.

This is not good for the nation. The conditions created by the war have largely masked its injurious effects thus far; but we are now on the brink of a period when the trade of a reviving world will be disturbed anew and when any paralysis of American enterprise by uncertainty as to the course of the Administration would inflict upon us an irreparable dismemberment.

Other nations are gathering in the harvest. Trade routes are now being established which it will be most difficult to divert when they have once been hardened by custom and fortified by fiscal and commercial outworks. What we might gain today for the taking we will be compelled to fight hard for and pay dearly for in a decade. Thus, then, is the critical moment when every American business man should feel free and safe to leave far out into the world and reach for every opportunity which he thinks he can profitably handle, without the smallest fear that a "one-track-mind" Administration behind him will take an unexpected switch some bright morning and leave him suspended in air.

In nominating Hardling and Coolidge the Republican party has returned to the traditions of McKinley. They are not trying to elect a super-man who will feel himself entirely competent to do all the nation's thinking for it. They are putting a man in the position of chief executive who will seek and listen to advice from the public servants whom the people elect to surround every chief executive. It is not in the American spirit to establish in peace-time a dictatorship over themselves. They do not relish an autocratic hereditary or self-appointed. They sincerely believe in the democratic form of government.

This gives stability to an Administration. And that is what we particularly crave. We want and need only settled policies in our public business, whether at home or abroad. We are sore and bruised and rebellious because of the fiscal experiments, the economic adventuring and the sentimental "Leaning-backward" instinct of the Wilson regime. We want to get back to plain orthodoxy. We want to see the government strictly and big business in the good old fashion and let production, industry, agriculture and all the energies of this mighty nation enjoy free play.

We are due for a term of "conservatism" if that means keeping quite away from the giddy brink of Socialism. We do not want to see a disturbing "Red tide" in any of our departments just because we have a President who has a penchant for "forward-looking" persons who cannot perceive the malice of Bolshevism because the light of "the Millennial Dawn" is in their eyes. We want a government of safe and sane everyday Americans who value personal liberty, believe in personal initiative and refuse to believe that any one man knows more and better than all men taken together.

Taking Big Chances.

It is too much of a risk to depend upon neighbors or sending for medicine in case of a sudden attack of bowel complaint. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from cholera morbus that could easily have been saved had the proper medicine been at hand. Then think of the suffering that must be endured until medicine can be obtained. The safe way is to keep at hand a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy a preparation that can be depended upon. Buy it now. It only costs 35 cents—Adv.

Equipment Costs Were.

Compared with January prices railroad equipment costs approximately 10 per cent more. A small locomotive costs $100,000 as against $90,000 six months ago. One hundred ton coal cars cost $6,200, compared with the former price of $5,000, to $5,000 and refrigerator cars which were quoted at $4,000 are now quoted at $4,750.

CONSTRUCTION MAN HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Is Almost Killed by Train in Railroad Yards

N. L. Dick, of 111 Eighth Avenue, Huntington, W. Va., narrowly escaped death in that city a short time ago. Mr. Dick while at work was seized by a dizzy spell and forced to go home. Starting across the C & O yards he became unconscious and fell between the tracks where he was found by a passerby and assisted home. A friend recommended that he take The Rease Formula R-11. This he did. He is now feeling fine and tells of the incident as follows:

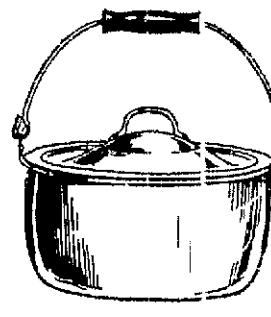

"I had suffered from dizzy spells caused by stomach, liver and kidneys for years and until I began taking The Rease Formula R-11 nothing seemed to benefit me—the least, although I believe I have taken everything. Not only has the dizziness disappeared but I feel better all over. I eat sleep and feel as though I had never known a sick day in my life. I most heartily recommend this remedy to everyone suffering as I did and only what I had known of The Rease Formula R-11 sooner."

The Man Who Wasn't Himself

By ROBERT AMES BENNETT

(Copyright by W. C. Chapman)

Conernation alone saved Clinton from the explosion of his quick temper. It was truly a dilemma in which he found himself. To remain in the saloon might be to lose all the new of escape; but to leave without trouble—The thought of fleeing in pajamas with a charming young lady whom one does not acknowledge to be his sister is, to say the least, embarrassing.

He put on his remaining clothes, buttoned up the coat, examined his appearance in the winking moonlight and flushed. Considerate of his feelings the moon went down, and the mellow darkness cloaked him about. In obscurity, his courage rallied. So dark at night, no one would see.

With burglarious stealth he crept to the bed and pulled off the coverlet and sheets. To knot them end to end was the work of only a few moments. He stole across to the window, lowered the upper sash, and tied one end of all four to the two window cords on one side. He did not open the sash, but stepped down to crouch in a corner and look at his watch by the light of a vest. It was five to twelve. He had not completed his preparations a little too soon.

As he returned to the window he saw the light of a passing automobile. It sprang up on the windward and opened the top screen to peer out. The automobile slackened speed and stopped at the first house across the street from the saloon. It seemed to be a coupe. At once he swung himself out over the window sashes, peered down to make certain that the window below was unlighted and cautiously began to lower himself from the sill.

When he got his weight on the sheet line it stretched with the tightening of the knots but held. He slowly let himself down, hand under hand. Before he came to the lower end, his stockinged feet touched the ground.

He turned out toward the vague blot under the overshadowing tree. The ceiling of a coupe became dimly visible, then the white form of an out-peering face.

"All aboard," he whispered slipping into the seat beside the excited girl.

The coupe glided out of the gutter and started up the street at quickly accelerated speed. As they swept across the lighted intersection Clinton crouched forward with his hands on his knees. Amy did not observe the embarrassed movement. She was passing ahead into the darkness beyond the intersection. She ran the next block, circled around the corner, and turned on the coupe lights.

"You're a little trump!" he exclaimed.

"That's nice of you, poor dear boy! Isn't it fun? Isn't it romantic! I was shivering with fear that they might pop out and—Lean back till we pass the crossing."

Involuntarily he obeyed. She glanced at him to make sure, and perceived his costume.

"Oh!" she gasped. "Oh! Didn't you have time? Where are your trousers?"

"I—no—the—" he stammered— "that confounded attendant, stole them."

"Stole?"

"Claimed the rules required him to take my clothes to be pressed."

"So that was it! That must be one way they keep patients from running off. But it didn't stop you, you brave boy!" Amy burst into a gurgle of irrepressible mirth.

"See here," he admonished. "Even if I am—"

"Indeed no, not even if you are my brother. I wouldn't see it's—it's real too shocking." This time she started the silence of midnight with a burst of ringing laughter.

"Miss Lowrie!" he reproved in a tone that left no doubt as to his real dignity.

Though bubbling with repressed mirth, the girl had paid close attention to the driving of the coupe. She kept to the smoothest of the more secluded streets, and slackened speed while passing through the radius of light at the intersections, that the coupe might not attract the unwelcoming observation of a chance police man. But between intersections she threw on the high gear.

"We must get home before they learn of our escape," he explained when Clinton suggested a more modrate speed. "They may telephone about it, and if they should find I am not at home—don't you see—that would let them out of the bag. They would come for you at once."

"You've ventured to do all this absolutely alone?"

"Of course. Keep quiet. Here's our block. See! Still keep still now. No one must see us go in."

She turned off the coupe lights and drove slowly toward the other end of the long block. The light from the nearest intersection was just sufficient to show her clear young eyes where to turn into the yard. Under the pelicans the darkness was dense that she entered it at a snail's pace, one hand on the steering lever and the other thrust out of the side window to touch the grape leaves with the tips of her fingers.

"The porte-cochere door is unlocked," she whispered. "Slip out now, and creep up to your room. I'm afraid to stop."

"If you insist," he acquiesced.

The stairway and upper hall offered him the relief of a clear passage. He stole up to his room. The door was ajar. After pausing to listen he ventured to light a vesta. The little flame lasted long enough for him to make sure that all the shades were drawn down close over the windows. He closed the door. Lighted a single gas jet, and crept into the closet. When he emerged, his features were covered with crimson, and his stockinged feet crumpled into a pair of tight shoes.

At the same instant Amy slipped in at the door, beaming with the mischievous delight and exultation of a college girl at a midnight feast. Her first act was to turn down the gas her second to hold up her lips for Clinton to kiss her. Instead he caught her hands to keep her away from him.

He tried to force his gaze away from her sweet face, and could not. Drew in a deep breath and murmured protectively, "Miss Amy, you refuse to realize—"

"No, it's you," she broke in. "Now that Ellen has jilted you and Charlie has jilted me—"

"What? You weren't engaged to Ellen?"

The girl blushed under his intent gaze. "I—I did think that perhaps I might—but that was before you came home. Since then—" She faltered and looked down.

"It's so queer. Actually I believe I love you twice as much more—so much that I haven't any room for Charlie."

"You are certain?"

"Positive. And the funny thing is I was going to encourage him just because you didn't want me to. Then I began comparing him with you and somehow—Why do you know—you mustn't even smile because it's—it's normally triple—but actually I was becoming jealous of Ellen. Wasn't that foolish of me?"

It was he bent down to sweep her into his arms and shower kisses on her lips and eyes, on her dimpled cheeks and white forehead and on her exquisite pink ear and fragrant hair when overwhelmed she snuggled her face on his shoulder. Bewildered

REVEREND MARCUS SENDS MESSAGE OF HOPE

TO PHYSICAL SUFFERERS AS WELL AS SPIRITUAL; RECOMMENDS THEY TAKE THE REESE FORMULA R-11

Minister at Yolyn, W. Va. Praises Reese Formula R-11 Because of the Benefits He Has Received from Its Use; He Advises Everyone To Try It

Reverend A. A. Marcus, Baptist minister of Yolyn, West Virginia, believes in looking after the physical well-being of his people as well as ministering to the spiritual. He has for some time been troubled with kidney disorders which caused the usual severe pains in the back and general run down condition of the system. He bought a bottle of the Reese Formula R-11 in the Paragon Company's store and in the following statement tells of the benefit derived from its use.

He heartily recommends it to others.

"My kidneys have been giving me trouble for some time," said Rev. Marcus. "The resulting pains in the back were very severe and my whole body was upset. Seeing The Reese Formula R-11 being advertised in the company store at Yolyn I decided to try it. After taking the FIRST bottle my kidneys stopped hurting and I could attend to my work and feel as good as any man could."

"Reese Formula R-11 is certainly a remedy without a peer and I do not think that I would be doing my duty to humanity if I did not recommend it after knowing positively the relief it has given me. I therefore most heartily appeal to all sufferers to try a bottle of the Reese Formula R-11 if they suffer from disorders of the kidneys, liver or kidneys for its benefits are unquestionable."

COAL TRADE WILL BENEFIT AT EXPENSE OF BEEHIVE COKE.

At Least to the Extent of Enjoying a Much Better Car Supply.

HIGHER PRICE FOR COKE

But Production Will Be Restricted by Preference Given to Cars for Coal Loading; May Speed Up By-Product Output and Narrow Beehive Market.

From The Weekly Courier

The benefit the coal trade of the country in general, and the Connellsville region in particular, may derive from the operation of the coke car priority order is going to be very much to the detriment of the beehive coke trade. If the order means that all coal cars heretofore used in the coke trade are to be restored to their primary function, and such stray coke cars as have drifted into the coal trade are to be preempted by coal operators whenever available, the inevitable consequence will be that the coke car supply will be still more curtailed. That this interpretation of the order, made by coke operators is correct seems to be confirmed by the developments of the week. Coal car supply has taken a decisive spurt, exceeding 100 per cent; some days and in some quarters of the region, while coke car supply has failed to show any appreciable betterment in fact it has been considerably reduced as compared with the average prevailing before the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission became effective.

Another and very concrete evidence of the effect of a more plentiful supply of coal cars and decreasing supply of coke cars is found in the drop in coal prices and the stimulation of coke prices up to $17.00 which has been freely bid for spot coke. The course of the coal market has been further adverse, influenced by the embargoes on shipments to export points one of the results of the occurrence of the unauthorized strike on the eastern airroads. This drastic measure has suddenly stopped the flow of coal eastward and diverted it to other markets which has fallen from the maximum of $10.00 ruling last Saturday to $8.50 which was yesterday's quotation with other certain indications of a further decline. Meantime the available supply of coke has been lessened and interruptions to its free movement to consumers have multiplied with the occurrence of railroad labor troubles in the very nature of things the bidding for coke has become increasingly active. That the price advance has been limited to about $2.00 per ton is rather surprising when all elements in the situation are taken into consideration.

Coal producers are not unmindful however that the turn in affairs which is serving to reduce the coal price level and hold coke firm if not also assist it with it the possibilities that a coke price recession is not far away. If coal movement approximates mine capacity, as it may do if the priority order proves effective, the tonnage of by-product coal will be materially increased coincidentally with the increase in steam coal. In such event the by-product coke producers will be able to speed up production the effect of which will be to narrow the market for beehive. This will doubtless be more noticeable in the Pittsburgh and central western districts than in the east particularly in New England. In the latter territory there is a dearth of coal of all kinds including by-product and the prospects are that the shortage will become acute instead of better so long as the new railroad labor troubles remain unsettled. While somewhat apprehensively awaiting developments the coke producers are keeping their ear close to the ground and otherwise holding themselves in readiness to anticipate if possible or at least be ready to meet the eventualities.

The estimated production of coke during the week ended Saturday June 19 was 175,730 tons contributed by the two districts as follows: Connellsville 90,700 a decrease of 6,110 tons, Lower Connellsville 78,424 a decrease of 3,900 tons or a total decrease of 6,500 tons as compared with a decrease of 4,350 tons during the week ended June 12.

By interests the production was furnace 112,610 a decrease of 6,990 tons merchant 65,20 an increase of 190 tons as compared with a decrease of 5,424 and an increase of 2,974 tons respectively during the week preceding.

There was a net gain of 98 in the number of ovens in blast 119 having been added at merchant plants and 21 blown out at furnace plants. The additions were 19 at Century and 102 at Starlight. Blown out 14 at Adelaide nine at Lemont two at West Penn.

CITY OFFICIAL SAYS THAT HE HAS BEEN PREJUDICED

Makes Significant Statement Regarding His Opinion of Medicines. But He Found That Very-Worth Was Different When He Gave Desired Results.

I have always been prejudiced against medicine but I am now of different opinion for Very-Worth is more than a medicine. It's more than a cold. Said C. W. Whitmer, 210 H St. E. Non. Ohio. And he goes one. I was completely run down and terribly nervous and I couldn't sleep. I would toss and turn most of the night. Had gas on my stomach and belched quite some time after eating. I have taken one bottle of Very-Worth and been helped marvelously. I have not enjoyed sleep in six months as I do now. I cannot recommend it too highly for I feel like a different man.

Mr. Whitmer is one of Xenia's highly respected citizens and held the office of Director of Public Service in this city for four terms. A statement coming from such a man is more than convincing proof. Mr. Worth has proved it twice in millions of other cases just as it has in his case. It drives in a sensible way to bring about the desired result because it is one medicine that acts jointly for the benefit of stomach and nervous system. It aids the digestive system neutralizes excess pot-house habits drives off impurities, stops gas forming and at the same time that it does this it gives nerve force sound restful sleep and tones and invigorates the system throughout. If you suffer from all ills go not hasty to start once on Very-Worth or it will do for you what it has done for millions of others in all parts of the country. Take a bottle home and use it according to directions and if you are not satisfied that it is helping you your money will be refunded.
